| Questions to Consider |  |
|-----------------------|--|
| 1.                    | Setting : Does this story have a fully developed setting in which the events take place? What could be developed further?   |
| 2.                    | Characters : Are the characters fully developed? Do we understand why they think and behave in the ways they do? Is there some way in which the characters could be more interesting? |
| 3.                    | Plot and conflict: Does the plot of the story have a clear beginning, middle, and end? What is the central conflict of the story?  |
| 4.                    | Character change: Does the main character of the story experience something that changes them in some way? How does this character change?   |
| 5.                    | Showing vs. telling : How does the author show (by engaging the five senses and using evocative language) instead of tell the events of the story?                                    |
